

Search and find the most boring thing in your house/classroom.

You'll need paper and a pen/pencil. Use colours if you'd like.

Search your home very carefully, like a kitten sniffing around a new house.

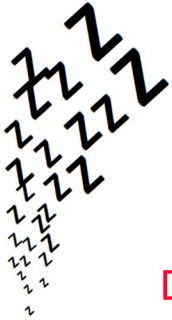

Mark your own work each time with a score out of 100.

Write a small comment about how brilliant and amazing everything you did is.

(Even if you don't think you did something brilliant.)

Do these exercises in any order you want. You are the boss.

Take your time to make sure you get it wrong!

Draw a picture of your boring thing dressed as a superhero (or just looking waaaay less boring).

2.

Draw a picture of your boring thing sliced down the middle.
What's inside? Make it either very right, or very wrong.
(If you're a genius, do both.)

3.

Write 5 interesting questions (or more) to ask the very boring thing. Answer your questions on behalf of the thing, in the voice you think would be the right one.

4.

Pretend you're an expert and write how/why this boring thing was made. Invent wild facts for fun.
Write as if you know more than anyone else about it.

5.

Draw a comic strip of your boring thing doing something incredible.
Make it so amazing that you can hardly believe it yourself.

Shock yourself!

6.

Write the most boring poem you can about this boring thing.
10 lines please. (It doesn't have to rhyme.)

7.

Write the word 'Boring' large, in an interesting way.
Maybe it's on fire or it's crying peanut butter.
Maybe it's made out of honeycomb buildings on another world.

8.

Draw a comic strip of the boring thing you picked shooting into the sky and exploding as a firework.

9.

Draw a picture of an alien finding your boring thing.
Write what the alien thinks this thing is.
Does it think it's something amazing, magical?
Or is the alien bored too?

10.

Draw pictures of yourself slowly turning into this item.
Is it still so boring?

When you've finished, wink at your boring thing.
Maybe give it a weird high five too.

Now you can do it all again, but with the most interesting thing you can find.

Think of your own exercises to do too, for example:

- Make a crown for the boring thing.
- Make a paper twin of the boring thing.
- Do boring things really exist???? (I think they do! haha!)
